Encountred yet his Better, I have heard
Two emulous Philomels, beate the eare o'th night
With their contentious throates, now one the higher,
Anon the other, then againe the firſt,
And by and by out breaſted, that the ſence
Could not be judge betweene 'em: So it far'd
Good ſpace betweene theſe kineſmen; till heavens did
Make hardly one the winner: weare the Girlond
With joy that you have won: For the ſubdude,
Give them our preſent Iuſtice, ſince I know
Their lives but pinch'em; Let it here be done:
The Sceane's not for our ſeeing, goe we hence,
Right joyfull, with ſome ſorrow. Arme your prize,
I know you will not looſe her: Hipolita
I ſee one eye of yours conceives a teare
The which it will deliver. Floriſh.

Emil. Is this wynning?
Oh all you heavenly powers where is you mercy?
But that your wils have ſaide it muſt be ſo,
And charge me live to comfort this unfriended,
This miſerable Prince, that cuts away
A life more worthy from him, then all women;
I ſhould, and would die too.

Hip. Infinite pitty
That fowre ſuch eies ſhould be ſo fixd on one
That two muſt needes be blinde fort.

Theſ. So it is. Exeunt.

Scæna 4. Enter Palamon and his Knightes pyniond: Iaylor, Executioner &c. Gard.

Ther's many a man alive, that hath out liv'd
The love o'th people, yea i'th ſelfeſame ſtate
Stands many a Father with his childe; ſome comfort
We have by ſo conſidering: we expire
And not without mens pitty. To live ſtill,
Have their good wiſhes, we prevent
The loathſome miſery of age, beguile
The Gowt and Rheume, that in lag howres attend
For grey approachers; we come towards the gods

1. K. What ending could be
Of more content? ore us the victors ha
Fortune, whoſe title is as momentary,
As to us death is certaine: A graine of
They not ore'-weigh us.

2. K. Let us bid farewell;
And with our patience, anger tottring
Who at her certain'ſt reeles.

3. K. Come? who begins?

Pal. Ev'n he that led you to this B

Iaylor. Sir ſhe's well reſtor'd,
And to be marryed ſhortly.

Pal. By my ſhort life
I am moſt glad on't; Tis the lateſt thin
I ſhall be glad of, pre'thee tell her ſo:
Commend me to her, and to peece her
Tender her this.

1. K. Nay lets be offerers all.

2. K. Is it a maide?

Pal. Verily I thinke ſo,
A right good creature, more to me deſe
Then I can quight or ſpeake of.

All K. Commend us to her. T

Iaylor. The gods requight you all,
And make her thankefull.

Pal. Adiew; and let my life be now
As my leave taking.
